Helping Parents & Kids
Survive the Teenage Years

Every parent worries about the well-being of his/her children. How do we guide them to make good decisions? How do we guarantee they will not do drugs, drive drunk, join a gang, try suicide, or harm themselves or others? How do we help them deal with social and academic demands, and make the right choices in life?

Susie Vanderlip – nationally-known speaker, author, and expert on teen and family issues – will give the audience insight into the pressures of being a teenager and the underlying emotional issues and life stressors that lead to unproductive choices. Come and learn how parents and teens can cope, find hope and help as they make important decisions, make healthy and responsible choices, and survive the teenage years.
